Thessaloniki, May 7-8, 2004
Auditorium, City Liberal Studies,
Affiliated Institution of the University of Sheffield
Kalapothaki Str. Thessaloniki Greece

After the successful organization of two International Student Spring Symposia (S3IWT02, S3CTIT03), the 3rd student spring symposium on "The Internet & Web Technologies" (S3IWT04) is jointly organized by:

- Association of Computing Machinery (ACM) Student Chapter Greece,
- AcademiX,
- CITY Open Source Society (COSC) and
- the International Society of Logistics (SOLE) CITY student chapter and supported by:

- the South - East European Research Center (SEERC) and
- the Greek Computer Society (EPY) Macedonia-Thrace Annex.

The Symposium will be held in Thessaloniki at the Rodoula Kehagia Auditorium of the City Liberal Studies located in Kalapothaki street. The symposium will feature sessions with introductory presentations on several topics with a particular focus on the Internet and web technologies and tutorial sessions.

The exponential growth of the Internet not only involves computers, networks, domains, addresses, websites and packets, but also content and people. Today, nearly everyone is an Internet user and many are responding to the challenge in unique and valuable ways to put this new tool to use. The objective of the 3rd International Student Spring Symposium on Internet & Web Technologies (S^{3}IWT04) is to create a series of presentations that will demonstrate and explain the usage of several technologies used on the web, and that will initiate discussions on several issues regarding the user of the Internet.

The major topics of interest include but are not limited to:

- Development Technologies
- Social, Legal and Regulatory Policies
- Commerce and Finance
- Teaching and Learning
- Network Technology and Engineering
