Profile.

Introduction

The South East European Research Centre (SEERC) is a multidisciplinary, not-for-profit research centre based in Thessaloniki, Greece. It was established jointly by the University of Sheffield (UK) and CITY College (Greece) in 2003, as a truly international research institute with the mission to support the stable and peaceful development of South-East Europe by conducting pure and applied research in, and for the region. Research at SEERC is organised along three research tracks:

1. Enterprise, Innovation and Development
2. Information and Communication Technologies
3. Society and Human Development: Psychology, Politics, Sociology and Education

Within each of these areas, SEERC has developed multiple research groups focusing their expertise on specific sets of questions. In line with the international vision established for the centre, each research group is composed at its base of researchers from the University of Sheffield and from CITY College, and is open to additional members coming from universities, research centres, and think tanks throughout Europe.

Since its establishment in 2003, SEERC has consolidated its structures and has put in place procedures –administrative and strategic- for the planning of its key activities, which include:

- Collaborative Research: SEERC participates and coordinates a great number of research projects and collaborations within international consortia, funded through EU sources as well as through foundations and national funding agencies. These projects address issues of importance to the South East European region and beyond, and cover a range of diverse and often cross-disciplinary research topics.
- Doctoral Programme: SEERC hosts the Doctoral Programme of the University of Sheffield in Thessaloniki. The programme offers the opportunity to study towards a PhD degree from the University of Sheffield, under joint supervision by academic staff from the University of Sheffield and CITY College. The programme currently numbers more than 30 Students (full-time and part-time) coming from numerous countries throughout Europe.
- Networking / Events: Each year SEERC organises numerous international or regional conferences and workshops within Greece and other countries of South East Europe, which aim at bringing together experts in a range of topics relevant to SEERC's research activities. Along with targeted networking missions to SEE countries, these events contribute to the establishment of SEERC as an important research institute and international think-tank in the region.
- Publications: The outcomes from regional and international events organised by SEERC, or from funded research projects in which SEERC participates, are disseminated at an international scale through timely publications of books, bulletins, and more.

Each of the above key activities of SEERC is presented in further detail in the sections that follow.

1. Collaborative Research

SEERC's goal is to conduct research on timely topics and deliver results of relevance and value to the scientific community, policy-makers, and the general public. To that end, SEERC has developed a number of Research Clusters that initiate activities leading to funded research projects in collaboration with other Research Institutes, Universities, Public Bodies and Governmental Agencies, Small and Medium-sized Enterprises, Large Enterprises, Associations of Companies, Technology Transfer and Innovation Networks, Non-Governmental Organisations, and many more.

Since its establishment in 2003 SEERC has received funding for a significant number of research projects by various funding agencies and funding programmes.

Ongoing research projects (as of December 2009):

1. RELATE: "Trans-European Research Training Network on Engineering and Provisioning of Service-Based Cloud Applications" (funded by FP7 Marie Curie Initial Training Network Programme).
2. Asviloc+: "Agencies Supporting Value of Innovation Systems in Regional and Local Economies" (contracted by ANATOLIKI Regional Agency within the framework of a project funded by the South East Europe Transnational Cooperation Program).
3. MedLab. "Mediterranean Living Lab for Territorial Innovation" (contracted by the Regional Authority of Central Macedonia within the framework of a project funded by the Mediterranean Transnational Cooperation Program).
4. ELIE: "Employability. Learning through International Entrepreneurship". (funded by Life-long-learning Program).
5. INTERVALUE: Inter-regional cooperation for valorisation of research results (funded by South East Europe Transnational Cooperation Programme).

2. Doctoral Programme

SEERC is committed to growing the number of highly trained researchers working in South East Europe. As part of its mission SEERC offers opportunities for postgraduate students to undertake research based at SEERC in Thessaloniki leading to the award of a PhD degree by the University of Sheffield. Today there are more than 30 students undertaking doctoral study at SEERC, in either full-time or part-time mode.

The programme aims to:

- build greater research capacity across the region
- provide greater access to South East Europe for students from elsewhere
- foster collaboration and the sharing of perspectives among researchers throughout the region and beyond

Faculty from the University of Sheffield and CITY College in Thessaloniki jointly supervise the students' training and research. All full-timers are based at SEERC whereas the part-timers are normally mid-career professionals resident in South East European countries. In this way, there is a valuable exchange of knowledge and insight to the region among students, supervisors and SEERC.

Unique Features of the Doctoral Programme at SEERC

Joint Supervision scheme: Each student is assigned a supervisor from the University of Sheffield and CITY College respectively. This scheme exposes the students to a diverse set of knowledge and contacts that originates in the expertise and work of the two supervisors based in different regions.

Research Training: During the first two years of their studies, students complete a Research Training Program, a series of theoretical, methodological and subject-specific courses, while at the same time conducting research in order to complete a thesis by the end of the third year. SEERC -in collaboration with CITY College- operates special units that equip students with the skills and competences necessary for conducting research and also for entering academic professional life.

The Annual South East European Doctoral Student Conference: Each year SEERC organises the Annual South East European Doctoral Student Conference giving young researchers the opportunity to present their work in a doctoral forum. The aim of the conference is to initiate an exchange of knowledge between young researchers and to help establish a network of scholars undertaking research in Southeast Europe.

Research Student Seminars: SEERC encourages students to present the progress in their research in small scale events attended by fellow students and staff and to benefit from exposure to an audience of diverse composition. During these events they have the chance to utilise important feedback from the students and staff as well as to sharpen their communication and presentation skills.

Open Seminar Series: Alternatively, experts are invited from related sectors to hold seminars on topics at the forefront of European developments and to raise questions suited to the intellectual background of the students. The Open Seminar Series are planned with maximum student involvement so that students simultaneously develop and apply their organisational skills.

3. Networking / Events

One of the core goals of SEERC is to ensure targeted dissemination of its research findings particularly in South East Europe (SEE). Since 2003 a number of events have been organised in the region to address topics of importance to South East European countries and also to bring together a range of actors from academia, business and the government to discuss scientific developments in sectors of vital interest to the Balkan countries and Europe.
